

■ Microsoft now pays for old electronics.

In collaboration with Telad-vance, which specializes in reusing and recycling electronics, Microsoft will give you cash for your used laptop, tablet, phone or game console if it meets the criteria for a trade-in. Items that don't the meet criteria will be recycled or returned to you for free. Information: Go to <https://bit.ly/3JIA7Bu>, and fill in information about the item you want to trade in...get an idea of the trade-in value...and the site will create a prepaid shipping label to use to send in your items. The site promises payment via PayPal or a bank transfer within 14 days of finalizing the trade-in. Other options: Other stores, such as Staples, GameStop and Best Buy, also have programs for trading in old electronics—but usually for store credit, not cash.

The Cool Down, an online sustainable living and environmental living site, Bend, Oregon. TheCooldown.com